

HESPERIAN SINKS 34 HOURS AFTER BEING TORPEDOED

CREW SAVED AS STEAMER GOES DOWN

CAPTAIN AND MEN WHO HOPED TO SALVAGE VESSEL FORCED TO ABANDON SHIP EARLY TODAY.

HIT WITHOUT WARNING

This is the Verdict of Passengers Who Have Been Landed at Queenstown—Two Americans, Crew Members Saved.

Liverpool, Sept. 6.—Word has been received here that the Hesperian, while making her way back to Queenstown, sank at 6:45 a. m. today.

The steamer which was bound from Liverpool to Montreal, was torpedoed at eight-thirty Saturday, about a hundred miles southwest of Pastnet.

The Hesperian remained afloat virtually thirty-four hours after being struck, and it was hoped she could be towed into Queenstown.

Captain Main and twenty members of the crew had remained aboard. Several steamers were standing by.

Late reports showed the Hesperian was down by the bow, to about thirty-five feet, with water in the two forward compartments. Captain Main was on the bridge, hopeful of being able to save his vessel.

Major J. S. Barres, a Canadian officer, and Lieutenant Lewis, of one of the British rescue ships, assisted the Hesperian's engineer in closing the bulkhead doors, so it was expected the water would be held forward, permitting the steamer to remain afloat.

Captain and Crew Saved.

Queenstown, Sept. 6.—Wireless report received by the Allen line, stated Captain Main and twenty members of the crew of the Hesperian, which remained aboard, were taken off before the steamer foundered.

The Queenstown Agency of the Allen line announced today that forty-five first class passengers on the Hesperian, 125 second class, and 168 third class passengers had been accounted for, and could not say at this time how many were missing.

The number of men in crew was given as 236 of whom there have been accounted for 250 not including those who remained on the Hesperian until she went down. These figures, the agency said, are approximately correct.

No news has been received here concerning sinking of Hesperian, but it is believed she went down about 6 o'clock this morning and those on board were rescued. The weather last night was rather bad.

Believe No Warning Given

London, Sept. 6.—The American consul at Queenstown, Westley Frost, telegraphed today to the American authorities that he had not been informed officially that the Hesperian had been torpedoed without warning, but they believed this was the case. None of the officers of Hesperian except assistant purser has yet arrived at Queenstown.

This man and various passengers interviewed by Mr. Frost, agreed on the statement that no warning was given.

Mr. Frost's message also said that forty-five unorganized troops were on board. Most of them invaded, and that the Hesperian had a 4.7 inch gun mounted astern.

Two Americans Rescued.

The consul has been unable to learn of more than two Americans who were on the Hesperian, both members of the crew and both reported to have been saved.

From stories told by survivors, the detailed account of the disaster gradually is being unfolded. "Most of the passengers say there is no doubt the attack was made by German submarine and some of them say they heard the lookout shout 'Submarine on starboard quarter.'" Thus far no state-ment has been made by any survivors who saw submarine or torpedo.

All agreed the Hesperian was struck on the starboard side between the foremast and bridge, and was lowered in the darkness but without panic. The fourth and fifth both were lowered unevenly and overturned, the occupants being thrown into the water. Some of them were injured.

Heard Cries For Help.

At the London office of Allen Line is stated, all passengers reached Queenstown safely. Some of them, however, say they heard cries for help from persons in the water.

A woman in one of the life boats dropped a small lead by removing a string and stuffing it into the hole. Three Sisters of Mercy were among the last to part from the Hesperian. One of the passengers asserted that sixty persons were crowded in life boat having capacity of forty.

Woman Dies of Shock.

A chronicle dispatch from Queenstown says that Miss Garberry, an elderly passenger on the Hesperian, died from shock, after being rescued, and another woman succumbed a short time after being taken aboard the rescue ship.

Turk Steamer Sunk.

The Turkish steamer Cymbeline has been sunk. Six members of the crew were killed and six injured. Thirty-one others were landed safely.

Mrs. Mohr Suspected of Plotting Husband's Death.

The defense of Mrs. Tiffany Blair Mohr of Providence, R. I., to the charge that in a jealous rage she plotted the death of her husband, will be that both Dr. C. Franklin Mohr and herself were victims of a conspiracy. She says that the three negroes who killed Mohr—George W. Healis, Victor Brown and Henry Spellman—conspired to rob her husband and then blame her to escape punishment.

ROME PAPER DENIES POPE SENT WILSON MESSAGE OF PEACE

Contention Made That No Autographed Letter Nor Copy of Note to Belligerents Was Dispatched.

Rome, via Paris, Sept. 6.—The Giornale d'Italia says: "Having obtained authoritative information, we are able to state that the pope sent to President Wilson no autographed letter, no message concerning peace, and not even the original copy of the pontifical letter to heads of the belligerent powers."

This newspaper says further that Washington reports that Cardinal Gibbons presented to President Wilson a letter from the pope, are open to doubt, especially in view of the fact that the servitors Romano, the organ of the Vatican, suppressed that portion of Washington dispatches which related to the message Cardinal Gibbons is said to have presented to the president.

Message by Cable.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The apparent conflict between Rome and Washington dispatches regarding Pope Benedict's peace message to President Wilson, is regarded here as resting solely over whether the pope actually addressed a personal message to President Wilson.

Cardinal Gibbons, on his visit to the White House last Thursday, said he had delivered a message from the pope to the president, but could not divulge its contents. It was learned that the message which came as a cablegram from Rome, addressed to Cardinal Gibbons last Monday, contained congratulations to Pope Benedict to President Wilson for his efforts on behalf of peace and expressed the views of the Vatican, which are well known. Thus, technically, the message was to Cardinal Gibbons, although he was commanded to express certain views to President Wilson. That is the course generally pursued in diplomatic relations.

View in Catholic Circles.

In Catholic circles here it is believed the Vatican intended Cardinal Gibbons should express to the president, what he knew to be the pope's position and that the pope, while probably believing that the time was not come for direct personal communication, took the opportunity for preparing the way technically for a message. It is believed here that the statements from Rome were prompted by requests for the text of what was believed there to have been a formal communication from the Vatican to the White House, and that they were not intended as denials of the story as it has been published in this country.

STREET CAR MEN ON STRIKE AT ALBANY

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 6.—All of the eight hundred conductors and motormen on the Albany city street car line went on a strike today. Traffic ceased immediately and Charles S. Hewitt, general manager of the city-owned Traction company, ordered the cars locked. A dispute over the charge and suspending of men caused the trouble.

PROMISE AID IN QUELLING BORDER RAID

CARRANZA'S COMMANDER DENIES THAT HIS MEN ARE MIXED IN ATTACKS ON TEXANS.

GEN. FUNSTON REPORTS

Includes Report of Col. Bullard at Brownsville Containing Offer of Co-operation to Stop Raiding.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Major General Funston reported today that General Nafarrete, the Carranza commander at Matamoros, had again denied that Carranza troops were raiding the Texas border and proposed bringing more Carranza troops to the American side to suppress disorder. The Carranza authorities have suggested a conference to arrange joint action.

General Funston's message included the following report from Col. Bullard at Brownsville:

Gets Nafarrete's Reply.

"Carranza's consul states to me that he has today in a long letter informed me that Carranza troops are the fact that American and Carranza troops are this morning facing each other near Mission and in danger of conflict. I have heard shots from the Mexican side of the river, and that any shooting from the Mexican side would be by men other than his. I yesterday one constitutional officer was killed and one civilian wounded in a fight across the river at Cavazos already reported by Captain McCoy.

"Same consul suggested a conference of American military authorities with constitutional military authorities to try to avoid difficulties. I replied that I would inform the department.

"The constitutional consul visited me Saturday and stated Friday afternoon while an American aeroplane was in flight over the river, apparently directed at the aeroplane. He reported to General Nafarrete, who said he could not believe the shots were fired by his soldiers, as he at that very hour had them all assembled for a review in Matamoros.

Offers Co-operation.

Nafarrete made an offer suggesting that more constitutional troops would be ordered to Matamoros district for the purpose of co-operation along the Mexican side of the river, against the American side.

"Consul added for himself his belief that recent firing from the Mexican side had been by men who were in the conditions in Mexico for some years have turned from honest men into outlaws, and he will by wire and letter at once report, explaining conditions to General Carranza and the constitutional representative at Washington. Consul emphasized repeatedly Nafarrete's suggestion of ordering more constitutional troops to the Matamoros district for the purpose of co-operation with the American authorities to stop passage of the river by bandits."

Another message from Col. Bullard to General Funston sent Saturday night from Brownsville, said:

Aeroplane Fired On.

"Aeroplane in vicinity of Brownsville has been fired on three times. Some 100 shots were counted. It has been over United States territory all the time. Our outpost at the international bridge, and the one at Brownsville pumping plant, located just west of Brownsville, probably the outposts firing on aeroplanes as reported on September 1, from same locality. The troops occupying south bank of river at same time that firing on aeroplanes was going on, our outposts at Brownsville pumping plant were fired on. This fire was returned. No casualties on our side.

Capture of Carranza.

Under General Trevino was announced to the state department today in consular dispatches from Nuevo Laredo. Carranza is just north of Saltillo. Consul Saltillo reported that the victory was being celebrated in Vera Cruz.

Governor Murdered.

The newly appointed governor of the state of Toluca was murdered in a revolt of six hundred Carranza troops at Toluca, according to the state department advices.

The Carranza agent here said official information received stated three Trontero revolts had been quelled Saturday. State department reports further stated that other revolts at Toluca were being quelled, but no foreigners had been injured. Troops, it was said, were ordered from Nerida and Vera Cruz by General Carranza to suppress the revolt, and succeeded in restoring order. The former governor of the state was said to be in charge now.

Two Railroad Wrecks.

Two more railroad wrecks by dynamite were reported in consular dispatches. The second section of passenger trains from Vera Cruz to Mexico City was blown up at Esmeralda on September 3, according to a telegram from Vera Cruz which gave details. Near Monterey the engine of a northbound passenger train was blown off its track, but none of the passengers were injured.

Two carloads of supplies forwarded by the red cross from Vera Cruz to Mexico City to American colony, have arrived safely.

GOV. DUNNE SPEAKS AT DEDICATION OF ALTGELD MONUMENT

Illinois Executive Praises Moral Courage of Former Governor Who Pardoned Haymarket Anarchists.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—In an address in which he praised the former governor for his courage in pardoning the penitentiary several of the anarchists who participated in the famous Haymarket riot in Chicago in 1886, Governor Edward F. Dunne today dedicated a monument to former Governor John P. Altgeld.

The monument was erected by the state and stands in Lincoln Park.

"Pre-eminently Governor Altgeld had the courage of his convictions," said Governor Dunne. "I know of no man who occupied a position in the public life of this state who had greater moral courage."

"He believed the conviction of the anarchists was the result of a mob's demand, although the mob was clothed in purple and fine linen. He had the courage to do a most popular thing at the time—to pardon the anarchists then confined in the Joliet penitentiary."

"His moral courage was again displayed at the time when President Cleveland, without a request from the governor or legislature of this state, or the mayor of this city, sent troops to Chicago for the purpose of suppressing riot."

"Governor Altgeld believed that this act was a violation of the constitution of the United States and the state of Illinois, and he courageously and vigorously protested against what he believed to be an unwarranted act, even though it was committed by the president of the United States."

"Governor Altgeld was absolutely incorruptible and vigorously honest. When elected governor he was reputed to be a very wealthy man. But his devotion to public interests compelled him to neglect his private business during his term of office, and he became seriously embarrassed financially. This man had the resolution and honesty which impelled him to refuse a bribe of a half million dollars."

"During the Boer war thousands heard his powerful and eloquent pleas in behalf of the struggling people of South Africa. Indeed, it might be said that he gave up his life in behalf of the struggling Boers, for on the night of his death and just before he collapsed he delivered one of his most eloquent speeches in behalf of the struggling burghers of South Africa."

"Yet this man, who advocated naught but justice and truth and equality for all men, probably was more maligned, misrepresented and vilified than any man that ever appeared in the history of this state."

"Because he stood against capitalized privilege, he became the target of a scandalous and mendacious press. These unjust attacks made the people cling to him during his life and make them now revere and honor his memory. The people of the great state of Illinois, in the erection and dedication of this monument, now make reparation and do honor to his memory."

JUDGE KNOWLES IS SHOT EARLY TODAY AT NORTH SCITUATE

Was On His Way To Providence To Court—Body Found By Road.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 6.—Judge Willis S. Knowles of the Eighth district court, was murdered at North Scituate this morning.

The bare announcement from Scituate that the judge had been murdered was all the information police had for some time.

The judge's home was at Cranston, but he had an office in this city. His district comprised the city of Cranston and the towns of Johnston, Scituate and Foster.

Judge Knowles left his country home in North Scituate shortly before eight o'clock this morning to take a trolley car to Providence. His body was found later at the side of the road. He had been shot.

HOW LABOR DAY WAS CELEBRATED AMONG WISCONSIN CITIES

Workmen Throughout State Enjoy the Holiday—Most of Janesville Down to Ball Game.

Milwaukee, Sept. 6.—Every Wisconsin industrial city today marked "Labor Day" with programs, parades and picnics. Labor Day has grown in importance until this year practically all employers closed in order to give their workmen an opportunity to enjoy the holiday.

Milwaukee with its many big manufacturing establishments held the largest celebration. Ten thousand workers with bands and floats gathered down town this morning and marched to abate park. Here in the afternoon 25,000 gathered to take part in the athletic events and listen to the music and speakers.

Attorney Frank D. Comerford of Chicago, who defended Carl Person, editor of the strike bulletin of the Illinois Central employees federation, was the speaker of the day. He discussed the causes of industrial discontent and its effect upon the welfare. Many prizes were distributed.

PICNIC AT OSHKOSH.

Oshkosh.—Labor organizations did not parade here today, but held a monster picnic with a ball game, band concert, and a number of athletic events. Oshkosh yachtmen raced class A boats on Lake Winnebago this afternoon.

GREEN BAY CELEBRATES.

Green Bay.—Green Bay's Labor day celebration was held at Perry park this afternoon. At noon all of the unions gathered and paraded through the downtown streets, led by the Green Bay band. A feature was the tug of war between the brewery workers' union and the brewery workers' union.

FIELD MEET AT NEENAH.

Neenah.—The quarterly meeting of the Sheboygan County Rural Carriers' association was held here today. The carriers were welcomed by Mayor Jackson and President Albert Toefler spoke.

HOLD LABOR DAY BALL.

Antigo.—Antigo will celebrate Labor Day with a ball game given by the Typographical union, the Cigar-makers' union and the Brewery workers' union.

BAND CONCERT.

Menasha.—A great open air band concert will mark Menasha's celebration of Labor Day. The sixty-piece Sheboygan Concert band will play here today. The concert was widely advertised in the Fox River Valley.

YACHTMEN TO RACE.

Fond du Lac.—The Labor Day celebration here was marked by a revival of the old time yacht races. Class C boats came here from Oshkosh and Neenah to meet the local boats.

CUBAN'S SUGAR CROP WILL BE INCREASED AND BETTER THIS YEAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 6.—Expectations now run high that Cuba's sugar crop will reach the unprecedented figure of four million tons and will be improbably considerably exceed that figure. The planting of additional acreage on a great scale, the fact that owing to the unreasonable rains of last season it was impossible to cut a large proportion of the cane and that this will be ground at the close of the coming season, and reports that the growing crop is doing splendidly, combine to justify the high estimate. With this goes an unprecedented importation of sugar making machinery for the equipment of the numerous new mills in all parts of the island.

MIRE STOPS INVADERS ON RUSSIAN SOIL

GERMANS' HEADWAY HANDICAPPED BY TRACTLESS WASTES IN CENTER OF LONG BATTLE LINE.

RUSS STRONG AT RIGA

Battle Continues With Defenders Holding Way to Baltic Port—Artillery Fire Heavy.

London, Sept. 6.—Fighting on both wings of the eastern front proceeds with much greater vigor than the struggle in the center where the invaders apparently are having difficulties in trackless swamps.

In the south near the Galician border fortune fluctuates, first one side, and then the other claiming successes. The main offensive however, still lies with the Austrian and Germans.

On the north flank, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, now holds the Drina bridgehead at Friedland, but has lost that at Lenevada further down the river, towards Riga. The battle in that region continues without decisive results.

Russia has corrected earlier reports concerning the attempts of the Germans to make a landing at Perny, confirming Berlin's statement that instead of losing vessels as the result of attacks by the Russians, the Germans intentionally sank several small steamers to block the entrance to the gulf of Riga. The deduction is made that the Germans feared the Russians would land there sufficient strong forces to threaten Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's left flank.

Saturday and Sunday along the western front, brought a continuation of the vigorous bombardment by French artillery at Arras in the Champagne, the Argonne, along the Lorraine frontier, and the Vosges.

This heavy artillery firing has continued for almost a fortnight. The motive is no more obvious now than at the beginning.

Turk Claims.

Constantinople, Sept. 6.—The following statement was issued today by the Turkish war office on operations in the Dardanelles:

"In the Anatolia sector our reconnoitering detachments made some successful night attacks, capturing considerable booty."

"At Al Burnu, artillery fire and bomb throwing continues."

"At Soudan Burnu, the enemy artillery fired intermittently without success on the Alburni Tepe front."

SHIPMENT OF GOLD FROM LONDON FAILS TO REACH HALIFAX

Reliable Information States That Battleship May Carry Anglo-French Financial Commissioners.

Vancouver, Me., Sept. 6.—Reliable information received here is that the battleship bringing the expected gold shipment from London had not arrived at Halifax this morning. It is supposed that the ship has on board the Anglo-French financial commissioners.

The admiral at Halifax is maintaining the closest secrecy and the censorship, which is severe, probably will not permit anything regarding the arrival of the vessel to be transmitted by telegraph.

ATTENDANCE AT FAIR IS TWELVE MILLION

One Million Have Passed Through Gates at San Francisco Exposition Within Past Two Weeks.

San Francisco, Calif., Sept. 6.—The total attendance of the Panama-Pacific exposition has passed the 12,000,000 mark. It was announced here today that one million have passed through the gates in the last four days, the average being 11,557 a day for that period.

Seed on Fertile Grounds.

Seeds of themselves will not grow—they must have the aid of soil and climate.

Soil study is now a science and experts can tell the farmer just what will thrive best in a given area.

A manufactured product is like a seed. It does not grow into sales and profits by itself.

It takes soil and climate in the way of introduction and advertising.

Manufacturers who use newspapers can call in the aid of science. They can skip the barren soil and plant only where conditions are right.

Manufacturers anxious to pursue the modern way are invited to write to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

ARMY AVIATOR HAS BAD FALL; ESCAPED

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 6.—Telegrams received today by Mrs. J. C. Morrow, mother of Lieutenant J. C. Morrow, who fell with his army aeroplane yesterday at Brownsville, Texas, were to the effect he had received only a few superficial cuts. While bruised and badly shaken, he sustained no broken bones.

JAPANESE PAY BIG TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF HENRY W. DENISON

Tokio, Sept. 6.—The Japanese people have given to the memory of Henry W. Denison, the American adviser to their department of foreign affairs, the same tribute they pay to their own dead.

NEED PREPARATION FOR LIFE'S VOYAGE

REVEREND HAZEN TAKES STORY OF JESUS CALMING THE SEA FOR HIS TEXT.

SPEAKS OF DR. WOODS

Sacrifice of Janesville Man's Life May Result in More Universal Recognition of International Law.

The story of Jesus calming the tempest on the Sea of Galilee was taken as the text for last evening's address by the Reverend Joseph C. Hazen at the Baptist church. His subject was "Lessons from Crossing the Atlantic."

"A voyage across the ocean is fraught with dangers," said Mr. Hazen. He who embarks knows not what peril may come before he is safely landed on the other side. Icebergs, storms, fogs, and at the present time the subtle submarine, all menace the lives of passengers, tending to enhance the uncertainty.

Dr. Woods started out on a voyage across the Atlantic to Europe with the purpose of serving in the war hospitals, in an effort to be of service to the people of the war torn countries. He sought to return home and his life was sacrificed. He was a victim of one of the sea perils which now beset ocean travelers. We mourn his death for he was one of our own people, and we ask why did it have to be? What good can come of the loss of Dr. Woods? But Dr. Woods' death may result in clearing up for once and for all an international law point which insures the right of men to travel unmolested on the seas.

Sometimes it is right to sacrifice lives so that other lives may recognize right.

Mr. Hazen compared the journey which one may make across the Atlantic to Europe to the journey which every life is taking from birth to grave. As we make preparations of an elaborate sort for an ocean voyage, arranging every detail of clothes, finances, passports and other things, make all possible preparations, so that we may be sure of a safe landing at that fair haven on the other side, in that other world which shall be eternity.

"Too often we who are making life's voyage day by day, are more interested in what is going on in some other part of the world, than we are in our own problems; we are more interested in Europe with its terrible wars and bloodshed, than we are in heaven; we are concerned more about some battle being waged across the water than we are in the battle which is being waged in our own life."

"What of your passports, and your preparations for the voyage of life? Have you accepted Christ as your captain making sure that you will escape the shoals and the dangers, the hidden mines and the treacherous reefs which beset your course? If you attempt to make the voyage of life without his director and guidance it is like attempting to steer a vessel across the Atlantic without an experienced captain, without a pilot who is acquainted with the course and who can avoid the obstacles and weather the storms."

Following the sermon the quartet composed of Mrs. Dunwiddie, Mrs. Doane, Mr. Horwood, and Mr. Olson, sang, "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me."

MONROE FAIR BOOSTERS VISIT JANESVILLE FOR TWO HOURS THIS EVENING
Thirty-four cars, including a band, left Monroe this morning, boosting the Green county fair, which opens this week on Wednesday. According to the schedule received at the Gazette this morning, the tourists will arrive in Janesville at five o'clock. They will take supper at five and until seven o'clock, when the department of music will give concerts and vocal numbers on downtown street corners. Fred J. Blumer is in charge of the run.

Joe Loomis training for running race.

Experts who witnessed the recent national championships at the Panama-Pacific exposition declared that Joe Loomis of Chicago, who won the 100-yard dash, would be one of the greatest sprinters the world has ever known if he would direct his attention to those events, instead of giving so much attention to jumping and hurdling. Loomis says dancing is a great help in training for his running races.

CATTLE IN STEADY DEMAND AT OPENING

Quotations Are Slightly Lower Than Saturday.—Hog Trade Is Irregular.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Chicago, Sept. 6.—There was a fairly steady demand for cattle at the opening of the market today although quotations were a shade lower than Saturday's. Cattle sold at $8.20 to $9.50, with corn fed steers at $10.20. Hog trade was irregular with receipts estimated at 28,000. Following are quotations:

Cattle—Receipts, 16,000; market steady; lower: heaves, 6.20 to 10.30; Texas steers, 6.50 to 7.60; western steers, 6.90 to 8.90; cows and heifers, 6.10 to 8.35; calves, 8.00 to 12.00.

Hogs—Receipts, 23,000; market irregular; light, 7.35 to 8.15; mixed, 6.35 to 8.10; heavy, 6.10 to 7.60; rough, 6.10 to 6.25; pigs, 7.00 to 8.00; bulk of sales, 6.50 to 7.75.

Sheep—Receipts, 16,000; market steady; native, 5.50 to 6.00; yearlings, 6.20 to 7.15; lambs, native, 6.00 to 6.75; western, 6.75 to 9.00.

Saturday's Market.
Chicago, Sept. 6.—Better grades of hogs sold at higher Saturday, with top light at $8.20, highest since middle of last October.

While best light sold 15c above a week ago, heavy packing swine closed 25¢ to 45¢ lower than previous Saturday.

Notwithstanding the sharp break in lamb values last week, the average price at $1.10 was nearly $2 above a year ago, the highest on record for first week of September.

Next week's arrivals are estimated at 44,000 cattle, 110,000 hogs and 65,000 sheep, against 40,474 cattle, 60,630 hogs and 120,537 sheep corresponding week a year ago.

Cattle Prices Higher.
Native beef cattle prices are 25¢ to 50¢ higher than a year ago, previous week, with fat cows and heifers 15¢ to 50¢ higher. Calves steady, compared with a week ago.

Four of the regular packing concerns were quoted Saturday's hog market, owing to small receipts, which totaled 7,000. Shippers took nearly half the run. Heavy packers closed weak. Average price, $7.15, same as Friday and $1.83 lower than year ago. Estimated average weight for week, 245 lbs.; previous week, 246 lbs.; year ago, 248 lbs. and two years ago, 233 lbs. Quotations: $6.50 to $7.70 heavy butchers' and shippling butchers, 100 to 220 lbs., 7.95 to 8.10; light butchers, 145 to 190 lbs., 6.95 to 7.50; heavy packing, 300 to 400 lbs., 6.25 to 6.50; mixed packing, 200 to 280 lbs., 6.50 to 6.85; rough packing, 100 to 150 lbs., 6.00 to 6.20; poor to best pigs, 60 to 135 lbs., 7.00 to 8.25.

Stags, 50 lbs. cockage per head, 3.75 to 6.40.

California Lambs Here.
Swift received 4,000 of the 5,000 lambs here Saturday. They came from California. The few on sale changed hands at Friday's prices or 40¢ to 75¢ lower than a week ago. Quotations: Lambs, common to fancy, $7.75 to $9.00; lambs, poor to good culls, $5.00 to $7.00; yearlings, poor to best, 6.25 to 7.10; wethers, poor to fancy, $5.00 to $6.00; ewes, inferior to choice, 3.50 to $5.50; Bucks, common to choice, 4.00 to 4.50.

MANY BOXING BOUTS TO BE STAGED TODAY

Week's Boxing Calendar is Interesting to Followers of Squared Circle.

—Big Match Comes Saturday.

This week will see affairs in the boxing circle go forward with a decided jump for today and tonight there is a wide collection of battles in all parts of the country; on Thursday Kid Williams, the champion little snapper of featherweights, meets Johnny Ertle at St. Paul, Minn. On Saturday comes the battle of battles, when Mike Gibbons and Packey McFarland settle the little millionaire dispute at Brighton Beach.

Today Joe Mandot, the southern champion lightweight, meets Rocky Kansas, an unknown, at Buffalo. Old boxing Nelson takes another fight at Chicago. Time, when he battles Red Jones for twenty rounds at Juarez, Mexico. Nelson has selected a good place to do his overtime fighting down against the greatest of the best, from all appearances today, is that between Johnny Griffiths, the Akron, Ohio, lightweight with a long, clean record, mixes with Jack Britton, the Cuban lightweight, who is so good that the most of the others shun him and put up the excuses about his being overweight and not being able to make the limit scaling. Carl Morris, a featherweight, and Arthur Pelkey, a welterweight, will meet at St. Paul, Minn., and if it was still further south the fans would not mind a bit.

Madison is to open up boxing, having Fred Gilmore and Young Herman meet for ten rounds. The other bouts are of secondary interest.

Much interest is taken whether "Rube" Marquard, the St. Paul bantam, will stand up against Kid Williams in their title battle at St. Paul, Minn. It is barely possible that Ertle has not had enough experience in ring lore as yet to go up against such a sturdy battler as Williams, whose glint hang style will be a hard one for the St. Paul kid. On the same night, Thursday, Appleton holds an exhibition between Bob Gorman and Jack Moran.

BOYCOTT MILWAUKEE IS CHICAGO'S PLAN

Chicago Boxing Fans Sore On Cream City Promoter For Not Putting On More Chicago Boxers.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Eight promoters and boxer managers of Chicago today took steps to boycott the Wisconsin fights, headed by Harry James, fight promoter and manager of the crack Mike Bantam, Johnnie Ritchie, local promoters and fight fans will organize to force the Chicago promoters to give more recognition to Chicago boxers.

The feeling that Chicago boxers and promoters have been getting the hollow end of the horn from the Wisconsin crowd has been growing for some time. The Chicagoans claim that although they take the Chicago fight of boxing matches and through their local publicity work send up big delegations for every fight show, the Wisconsin managers overlook them completely when it comes to engaging preliminary fighters.

"There are a lot of mighty good boys down on their laces because they can't get fights these days," said James. "There is a reason in the world why they shouldn't get some of the prize pickings. They help us get rid of a bunch of tickets every time Milwaukee and other Wisconsin cities pull a battle. All they get is a ticket to the show. What they want, and what they ought to get, is a chance to fight for more money."

James has behind him all the fight fans and newspapers of Chicago and in a meeting of the local promoters today declared it will be a fight to a finish. And, though James generally runs to managing fighters, he has a reputation for being able to stage a little fight of his own some times.

Eddie Plank, veteran southpaw, landed the can by Connie Mack when Chief Bender was turned loose. The will going good for the Feds. His catching is a big help to the club as well as his drawing powers.

Veteran Delivers the 'Plums to Falling Team-mates After First Game Is Lost, 6-0.—Phil-Lies Beat Cubs.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Chicago, Sept. 6.—"Big Ed" Walsh, idol of the Chicago White Sox followers, staged his second comeback of the season yesterday when he shod the slipping Sox in the second game of the double-header with Cleveland and won, 4 to 2. The Indians applied the brush in the opener, 6 to 0.

The visitors tapped Walsh for five hits, but until a couple of errors in the seventh, were unable to negotiate the socks within any distance of where said distance means something besides a blank in the frame.

Although the Sox had eight hits in the first, they were unable to make the circuit after reaching the sacks. Today the Sox are eleven and a half games behind the leaders, Boston.

Cubs Lose, 13-2 to Phillies.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Philadelphia had an easy time yesterday trouncing the Cubs in their final game of the season. Karl Adams was unable to keep the Phillies' batsmen guessing and was relieved by Zacher in the seventh. The Sox are eleven and a half games behind the leaders, Boston.

Bresnahan's troupe plays a double-header in St. Louis this afternoon.

BELOIT IN MOURNING WHEN CARDINALS WIN

JANESVILLE DEFEATS 'FAIRIES' SUNDAY BY THE SCORE OF 3 TO 1.

LAFFERTY "GETS HIS"

Rally In Seventh Inning When Johnson Doubles to Fence With Two on Bases.—Fucik Pitches Great Ball.

Sunday afternoon the Janesville Cardinals hung crepe on Sam Lafferty and his celebrated "grease" ball and the Beloit clan of Fairies by winning the double-header with Cleveland and won, 4 to 2. The Indians applied the brush in the opener, 6 to 0.

It was a great game of ball, filled with nifty hitting, sensation, fielding, enough to make the combat tight, with a crowd of about four thousand present with tons of enthusiasm and spirit. The Cardinals were downed to win because of a little inside baseball that was to be expected which would rob this noted Sam Lafferty of much of his effectiveness. Lafferty, who has not been beaten since coming to Beloit, uses a "grease" ball. On his trousers he had a strip of greasy cloth and before nearly every pitch he would anoint two of his fingers with the oily substance, obtaining a twist and a grip on the ball which results in wonderful curves. Captain "Denny" Blake protested to the umpire, but McWaters did not have sand enough, before the rabid crowd, to prevent Lafferty from using the grease ball. Anyway it did him no good as far as winning the game was concerned.

Nelson Is Star.

Blake and Nelson were the stars of the day, for both pulled off fielding stunts that would have done justice to Collins or Cobb. Nelson, who was shifted to right field from first base, brushed off four flies that were hummers, in the ninth inning, when Sullivan blasted a low drive to right field, Nelson was off like a shot and as the ball was falling dove and caught the ball with one hand, turned a somersault and came up with the ball. Even Beloit applauded this feat. Blake was a trustworthy guardian of the second sack, for he made four putouts and five assists, and none of the assists were in doubt. He wobbled at periods during the game, but in spite of his wildness he held the Fairies down to six hits, the same number the Cardinals combed off Lafferty, the "Invincible Lafferty," to beat Beloit talk. But the Janesville swats, or at least half of them, came in the "ill of it" seventh inning and counted the runs. One thing sure, Janesville had a batter who, in the eyes of the classed Sullivan, the ex-leaguer, by a mile and a half. It was pleasure to watch him work behind the bat.

In the final inning, into trouble when Thomas slammed out a single. Jewell laid down a grounder to second and Thomas was forced at the keystone sack. Cavanaugh walked to out, the sacrifice. Keene poked out a single, which scored Jewell. Letcher managed to get down to first because a pitched ball just barely touched his shirt and the bases were loaded to a sufficient point. Fucik had an easy victim and fanned Olson.

Lafferty Goes Strong.

Lafferty had the Janesville players hitting the air with his grease ball for it had the most tantalizing hop and hooks that evaded the bats. For three innings he fanned two an inning. Blake singled in the first, and until the final seventh, the Fairies never got a glimpse of first base again.

The Fairies were touching Fucik frequently, and in the third inning a fast play prevented a run. Wycoff was on first and Latchford hit a hard ball down between first and second. Sweeney went after the ball fast, made a one hand stab and threw to Fucik for the out. The Cardinals were fouling a bunch of bats, being unable to connect squarely with the greasy sphere, which acts the same as a spitter. Nelson prevented a run in the fifth with a catch of a drift off the bat of Keene which was traveling a mile a minute barely four feet from the ground.

In the sixth Johnson, at shortstop, booted a ball with two on bases, but the pellet sailed from his glove along the ground to Blake at second for a force out, retiring the side as a run was scoring.

"The Lucky Seventh."

Then came the seventh. Up to this point Sam Lafferty had been the show, and he was mowing the Cardinals down at a frightful rate. Lafferty took a long look at the score board, went to bat and slammed out a clean bingle. Lafferty evidently got his grease mixed with a little glue, for the Cardinals sure did munny the ball with Lafferty resting on first. Nelson struck out, and Blake waited out Lafferty for a pass to first. Our friend Johnson stepped to bat and the Beloit star, for once forgot to put on his pants.

The Chicago man connected for a long hit that sailed to the fence, just out of the reach of the center fielder. Both Blake and Kerner scampered home, Blake taking a slide and rolling over the plate. This wiped out that bachelorette run lead of Beloit, but the Cards made it one more for good measure. Delaney hit to third and in the play from first Johnson was caught off third. Big Mike Cavanaugh came near making a boot when they started to run down Johnson and the runner was safe at third. Driscoll lined one down and Letcher, Beloit's first baseman, booted, allowing the run to score. Sweeney and Curtis walked, but Fucik fouled out to first base. The Janesville tin horn brigade and lusty voiced fans went on the war path with pure, unadulterated joy. That rally buried Lafferty.

Fucik Improves.

Fucik redoubled his efforts on the mound and finished the game in de luxe style, only one Fairy getting on the sack, and that the result of an error by Sweeney at first. On the other hand, the Cardinals were just beginning to find Lafferty, getting a an inning but lacked gunnion at the bat to count another run. Anyway three was a great victory. Summary:

Earned runs—Cardinals 2, Beloit 1. First on balls—Fucik 1, Lafferty 1. Left on bases—Beloit 8, Janesville 4. Wild pitches—Fucik 1, Lafferty 1. Two base hit—Johnson. Struck out—By Lafferty 14, by Fucik 6.

Hit by pitcher—Lafferty, Letcher. Stolen bases—Blake, Thomas. Sacrifice hits—Cavanaugh, Olson, Lafferty.

Batted for Lafferty in 9th. Umpires—McWaters at plate, O'Brien bases. Time—2 hrs. 1 min. Lafferty's Obituary.

Poor old Lafferty and his grease ball. There was about a thousand from Janesville down to the game and half of them had tin horns. The Beloit band and tin horn chorus had the contest and the Janesville tribe won 2 to 1.

Nelson was weak at the bat, fanning three times, but his fielding made up for that.

Sweeney played a bum game at first, missing two that would have been easy for Nelson.

Poul balls going over the grandstand broke one windshield and a lamp on autos parked in the rear of the stand.

Both teams protested against decisions of Umpire McWaters and Catcher Delaney was very bitter against "Turkeyneck." He had a license to for McWaters' rulings on strikes were rotten in places. When he let Letcher go to first when the ball hit his shirt the Cardinals had another kick coming.

Ormsbee will be in the box today against Miller, and the Cardinals are predicting a victory by a good score. The lineup will be the same. Tilley pitched for the Fairies against Belvidere Saturday, winning 14 to 7.

Kernan, third played a whale of a game, getting two hits and no errors. The weather man developed his usual chronic grouch in the eighth inning, for a drizzling sprinkle started. Although it rained, wonder came the morning, no rain visited Beloit until during the game, and the diamond was in excellent condition.

COOPER AND ANDERSON WIN MINNEAPOLIS SPEEDWAY RACE HELD ON SATURDAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 6.—America's greatest motoring triumph was won by the Stutz team yesterday in the first 50 mile run by a road race speedway here when Earl Cooper led his teammate, Gil Anderson, across the finish line by one-fifth of a second. Cooper's time was 5:47:20. Anderson's, 5:47:25. The average of the race was 82.5 miles per hour.

Ed O'Donnell was a lamentably poor third, forty-two miles behind when Cooper finished. Strung out behind O'Donnell and in hopelessy out classed from the start were Tom Alley's Oren, Will Haupt's Duesenberg, O. F. Hable's Sebring, and Billy Chandler's Duesenberg.

Following was the order at the finish.

Position. Car and driver. Time.
1—Stutz, Earl Cooper 5:47:20
2—Stutz, Gil Anderson 5:47:25
3—Duesenberg, O'Donnell 6:20:25.34

MORRIS MILLER

A ball player giving his name as Ed Brene and claiming to have played with the University of Michigan is likely to land in durance view if he doesn't mend his ways. It seems that Brene wrote letters to several club owners and signed the name of Eddie Collins of the White Sox to them, recommending himself very highly. On the strength of the recommendation he got a job with Norfolk in the Virginia league, putting the club to the expense of transportation, and when he arrived he was found to be about as much of a ball player as Luke McGlue is supposed to be.

"Pooch" Donovan, athletic coach at Harvard, says Westmore Wilcox, who ran second to Ted Meredith in the quarter mile at the last intercollegiate, will develop into the greatest quarter miler in the history of athletics. "Wilcox is young at the game," said the Harvard coach. "He will improve with each race and that means new world's figures for him. Several times he came within a fraction of a second of Maxey. Long's famous mark of 47.4-8, and with a little more experience and strength, which he will have gained by next spring, I expect him to smash it and in doing so he will conquer the great Penn flyer."

How Frank Baker's swatting ability is regarded in the Delaware County league is strikingly illustrated by the following short yarn: In one of the recent games played by the Upland club, of which Baker is a member, the home-run wonder came to bat with the bases full. As Frank walked to his place, the opposing club's captain strolled in to the pitcher and gave instructions that Baker should be given a base on balls. "Pass him!" ejaculated the pitcher. "Why, that will force in a run." "Sure it will," replied the manager, but that is much better than having him drive in two or three."

Rube Marquard, famous twirler of the New York Giants, hates to think that he's through with the big leagues, and says he won't play with the Toronto International league club, to which he has been sold. As the major clubs, including the Feds, don't seem to appreciate him, it appears that he will have to play with the minors if he stays in baseball.

The European war has taken its toll in German sports as well as from the other nations engaged in the great conflict. Among the latest reports from Berlin is one to the effect that the annual fall races of the German Motorboat club, usually held on the Muggelsee, near Berlin, have been canceled. The fact that many motorboat owners with their craft have joined the volunteer motorboat corps and the necessity of saving gasoline are the reasons assigned. This cancellation of the races for the second time deals the motorboat sport a heavy blow, for there has been nothing along this line since the Baltic sea trip of the Imperial Motor Yacht club in June, 1914. The club in announcing the cancellation, says that nothing is planned for the immediate future.

"Give us the Bill James of 1914 and the pennant will be a walk." That's the way Rabbit Marquard, Brave shortstop, sizes up his team's chances for the National league rag.

Most men like Fatimas— but maybe you won't

Fatimas please so many men that they outsell any other cigarette costing over 5c.

But it may happen that your taste won't fit Fatimas. That's nothing against you. Nor against Fatimas.

But if your taste does fit Fatimas, you can feel doubly grateful. For of this you can be sure—Fatimas are cool and friendly to the throat and tongue. And they will never leave you "feeling mean" as long as you smoke within the bounds of reason. These tests show you how to prove this.

Because Fatimas are cool and because they can be smoked freely and often—they have rightly earned the title, "The Sensible Cigarette."

It simply remains for you to see if their taste suits you as well as it is suiting thousands and thousands of other men. Test Fatimas today.

You may find that their taste is exactly what you've been looking for in a cigarette.

TWO TESTS FOR ANY CIGARETTE

The taste of the cigarette—according to a leading tobacco journal—is the most important factor in the selection of a cigarette. But there are other qualities that you should look for in a cigarette. First, the cigarette should be of a good quality. Second, the cigarette should be of a good price. Third, the cigarette should be of a good brand. Fourth, the cigarette should be of a good size. Fifth, the cigarette should be of a good shape. Sixth, the cigarette should be of a good color. Seventh, the cigarette should be of a good texture. Eighth, the cigarette should be of a good flavor. Ninth, the cigarette should be of a good smell. Tenth, the cigarette should be of a good taste.

LABOR DAY.

Today is a holiday, especially set aside for labor to celebrate its prowess. Oliver Goldsmith in his wonderful poem, "The Deserted Village," paid a tribute to the modern day laborer when he wrote:

"Till fares the land, to hastening ills a prey
Where wealth accumulates, and men decay.
Princes and Lords may flourish or may fade,
A breath can make them as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroy'd can never be supplied."

The American working man has need this Labor day to rejoice and make merry. Are we not at peace with the world? Are not our factories furnishing the supplies for nations? Wages are good and the specters of famine and disease are not to be found in this great country of ours.

Today the wheels of industry pause in their busy whirl to pay tribute to the worker. It is a holiday, not alone for the man who toils with his hands, but for those other workers who labor in offices, stores, mercantile concerns and factories. To labor is an honorable occupation and it is only the drone who does not appreciate what is given us.

MEANING OF NEUTRALITY.

There is an organization with headquarters in New York, branches in Chicago and other cities, working under the misnomer of "Friends of Peace" that are insisting that the United States be neutral in the present European struggle and forbid the exportation of arms and munitions of war to those who desire to purchase them. It has a press agency established down in New York and from this agency emanated the following example of misstatements meant to befuddle the public as to the issues of the present struggle. In its reference to Dr. Edmund F. Woods, who met his death when the Arabic was sunk by a German submarine, it shows his hand clearly. As Dr. Woods was known to almost every reader of the Gazette by personal contact or reputation, the injustice this so-called "Friends of Peace" movement inflicts can be appreciated. The opening paragraph sent out by this press bureau, says: "The two Americans who went down with the Arabic were English and French sympathizers who might have purposely risked their lives in order to evade the law." Now the war on this side of the allies. In reference directly to Dr. Woods, it continues, "Dr. Edmund F. Woods, though he claimed to be a naturalized American, was born in England, and had his home in London at the time of the accident." This gross misstatement is something that shows the cause in its true light. Not "Friends of Peace," but "Friends of Misrepresentation." Dr. Woods had spent weeks in Berlin and Moscow. Why was his residence not given there? For the purpose of misrepresenting facts it was given as London. The article then further states that the doctor had been absent from the United States so long that it was doubtful if he had not expatriated his rights of citizen. Such twaddle is the facts, but shows clearly that behind all the "Friends of Peace" organization is something more sinister, as Dr. Woods left Janesville in June for his European trip.

This week this organization meets in Chicago, and in speaking of them the Chicago Herald dares call them absolutely neutral and quotes as follows:

"Would an embargo on munitions bring about peace? Both Germany and the allies have received munitions from America since the war began, but Germany now has plenty of everything she needs. The allies are by far the heaviest buyers of munitions in this country." (Extract from an interview with J. J. Tobias, head of the Chicago branch of the Friends of Peace. The copy of the interview was submitted to and each sheet "O. K'd" by Mr. Tobias before it was printed in Saturday's Herald.)

"The talk of the German government paying the expenses is rot. We all chip in to pay them. Paul F. Miller of the Abendpost and Horace L. Brand of the Staats Zeitung have given us their checks for $500 each." (Extract from same interview.)

"What is the society did first start as a German affair? Why should we Germans hang our heads? We have nothing to be ashamed of. Do you know that in Cook county Germans own 40 per cent of the real estate and possess 30 per cent of the deposits in Chicago banks?" (Also O. K'd by Mr. Tobias.)

"We have no sympathizers for the allies in our Chicago branch, with two or three exceptions." (Extract from same interview.)

"We are going to raise hell with any party not in our favor. The Teutonic nationalities will muster fully 5,000,000 votes and they will vote solidly." ("O. K."—J. J. Tobias.)

"The society was first organized in New York as a purely German proposition. They make no bones about that. But it has grown more rapidly than anyone ever hoped for and embraces all nationalities and creeds. It is absolutely neutral." (From the same interview. "O. K."—J. J. Tobias.)

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

The school year is about to open in Janesville and throughout the country generally. It is an important epoch in the lives of the younger generation, the promotion to a higher grade, the taking on of new responsibilities, taking up new work and a deeper and fuller realization that in order to succeed work is necessary.

There is nothing that is so essential to the life and prosperity of any community as good schools. It means better developed men and women, more than can be estimated at the present time. The days when the three "R's" were all that were essential for an education are past. When the boy or girl could read, write or cipher a bit and their education was finished. "Reading makes a full man but writing makes an exact one."

There is too much of a tendency to crowd the students of today, to force them to efforts really beyond their strength. Yet, when the finished product is turned out from the schools we find the student has about equalized in general knowledge although they may be deficient in some essential.

The old days of spelling bees might well be revived for the general good of the student. This is one of the essential features of the present day education that is sadly neglected. Too many boys and girls graduate from the graded schools and from universities and colleges as well, that do not know how to spell the simple words in every day business, and some, alas, fail to realize the importance of grammatical construction of sentences.

Good spelling, exact punctuation and grammatical construction are as essential to the student as to know what the Andes produces in the way of minerals or that the greatest common divisor is "Everybody's Business," a pamphlet issued by the Wisconsin Efficiency Bureau at Madison, has some suggestions to make as to the schools in general, particularly the rural schools that are worth consideration just at this time. The last issue of the bureau calls attention to the fact that in the years 1913-14 there were 399,000 pupils between the ages of four and twenty enrolled in public schools below the high school, and that there were 41,400 enrolled in public high schools.

Only about 10 per cent of the children enrolled in the grades or rural schools will enter high school. Only a small percentage of those in high school will enter college. Are you making your schools do the most possible for your children in the short time they have?

What about your rural schools? Are they properly lighted, heated and ventilated? Bad light means injury to the eyes. Light should come from one side or two adjacent sides, and there should be plenty of it. Poor heating means poor work. Pupils cannot work in uneven heat. If there is no provision for clean, fresh air, the children cannot be expected to do good work. Moreover, their health may be endangered.

Are your school grounds and buildings properly cleaned for the opening of the year? The law requires that buildings be cleaned before school opens. Dirty, unkempt buildings and grounds are neither pleasing to look at nor conducive to good work.

Are you going risk spreading disease by the use of the common drinking cup this year? Is your water supply drinking pure? You may have it tested free by the State Board of Health.

Most important—have you secured the best teacher available? Has she had experience or training? Does she take an enthusiastic interest in her work, or is it mere routine to her? Does she know of the advances made in teaching methods? Your school is for the children of the farm. Do you have agriculture and domestic science among the subjects taught?

The above suggestions apply also to graded schools. Have you raised your graded school to its highest efficiency? The state superintendent reports that all graded school buildings in 1914 were well ventilated, and that all were doing work in agriculture. Will you take some more advanced steps this year?

A small percentage of the high school graduates go to college. Do the remainder, and those who do not graduate, get the training which will be of greatest value to them when they leave school?

ing supervised and tested? How many of these children would take an interest if the teaching were made more interesting, if poor teaching is found to be a cause for their backwardness?

Evidently the new order of affairs affecting submarine warfare has not yet been announced to the commanders of the subsea craft of the German empire despite the promises of the imperial government.

Taking it all in all Rock county fairs were a trifle above the average when everything is considered. You have to go some to beat old Rock in anything these days.

Davy Jones' locker must be pretty well filled up by this time with all the ships that have gone to the bottom of the sea.

Listen for the school bells early tomorrow morning. They will ring out on time the knell to vacation.

All in all, it is a most elaborate program and doubtless there will be a large number of members present.

FARM MANAGEMENT CONTESTS FAVORED

Needed in Every Corn Belt State According to Iowa Editor, Who Praised Wisconsin, Janesville Gazette.
Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 6.—"It would be a very fine thing if a farm management contest similar to that which has just closed in Wisconsin were conducted in each of the corn belt states," said Henry Wallace, one of America's foremost agricultural authorities, in the editorial columns of the current issue of his farm magazine.

He argues that if farmers could be induced to keep accounts and find out the sources of their income, the expense in conducting their farms, what crops have paid them, and what have lost them money; if they could seek where their system is wrong, whether they have too much land, pasture or too little, whether their oat crop has paid them or lost money, whether they have got market prices for the corn they have fed to hogs the last two years, whether the cattle have paid market prices for the feed they have consumed, whether the rotation they have adopted is one suited to their climate, their business and their markets, there would be a decided revelation.

"The Wisconsin university has been taking the lead in many things," he concludes, "but this is really one of the biggest things they have undertaken."

LAKOTA CLUB MEETS ON TOMORROW EVENING

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Lakota club will be held tomorrow evening. This will open the fall season of the organization and the house committee has promised an excellent supper for the occasion. ITALIANS IN FIGHT ON SATURDAY NIGHT

One is Severely Gashed About the Head in Fracas on North Jackson St.—One is Arrested.

Arrests were made by the Janesville police Saturday night and Sunday morning among a group of Italian-Americans who were fighting in a public place on North Jackson street near the railroad tracks, to the rear of several residences.

One Italian was jailed Saturday night, but was released Sunday as there was no session of court today and it was stated this morning that probably one other will be brought into court Tuesday morning on assault charges.

Early Saturday night it appears that two Italians, said to have been under the influence of liquor, got into a drunken brawl and there was a "rough house" in which chairs, a hatchet, and dishes were exceptionally goodly.

Three of the Italians were locked outside of the house and attempted to force their way in, kicking through the panel of the door and using a hatchet.

The bloody battle took place. Dr. Edden was called to give medical attention to one Italian whose head was slashed by a long, deep gash and Officer Harmon and Dischner went to the house where the wounded man was being cared for.

The officers were at first unable to obtain any information from the Italian as to who he was and the question of who did the cutting went unanswered with a shrug of the shoulders.

A little strategy was executed by the officers. One Italian was pointed out to one Italian whose face was badly scratched as the one who wielded the dirk, and he was jailed.

The names of the Italians mixed in the fight were not given. The police this morning and Chief Champion was out of the city this morning.

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH Y. CAMERON

DO ANIMALS TALK?

Some time ago I discussed the subject of communication among animals and invited my reader friends to tell me what experiences they had had along these lines.

The following are among the interesting bits submitted:

"Polly was an aged and decrepit dog belonging to the writer and his friend Jim a vicious youngster that barked across the way. A stranger came and overhauled Polly's store of bones. Polly tried in vain to drive him off—the other simply side-stepped and continued his robbes. Felix then went to the neighbor's yard, found his friend and brought him over. Jim, the friend in need, promptly whipped the stranger for better morals."

One Man is Sure Ants Talk.

We have many examples in insects. It is evident that ants communicate with each other, probably by the antennae. A species of ants in Africa will march in a serried column, will visit a house at night, will divide the ranks and enter each room and retire again after clearing the place of insect pests, a missionary told me. He sat all night in an insulated chair holding his little boy in his lap. Nothing but bones was left of a pet bird they forgot to insure."

Looking for a House to Rent.

"I have a garden, mostly trees and shrubs, which is my hobby. Last winter I decided to put up bird houses to see if I could draw the wild birds and have been very successful and we have had, and are having a wonderful lot of pleasure out of the experience. When the nesting season opened I watched the houses very carefully as I was anxious to get tenants. One morning I noticed a beautiful pair of bluebirds flying around the place. Finally they settled in one tree where I had a bird house, so then I hid behind another tree close to them and watched. First one bird went in the house, stayed a few seconds, then came out, flew to where the other bird was perched and started to chatter. Then the other bird flew in, made a brief stay, came out, joined the other bird and did his chattering. They kept this up for at least ten minutes, first one and then the other going in the house and the one that went in always chattered to the other when it came out. I was inclined to think after the episode that 'birds talk.' The sequel may interest you. They did not rent that house, but they did rent another and raised a family."

The Dog Who Would A-Fishing Go.

"A family on our street had four fine large hunting dogs and one of them was a great fisherman. He would stand for hours on a dry day out about thirty feet in the shallow water, with a most absorbed look on his face, watching for small fish and often catching one. About this time a family moved into our neighborhood with a small white dog with a very large bark. This dog would run up and down the shore barking and thus frighten the fish away. We noticed the fisherman dog barking quickly up the street, and soon after, running with three dogs, curiously inquiring as to go out and watch the developments. To our amazement the first dog went back to his fishing and the other three patrolled the beach. Of course the small dog promptly disappeared."

CHICAGO SOCIETY GIRL TO WED SOON

Miss Helen Cudahy.

The engagement of Miss Helen Cudahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy of Chicago to Austin Niblack also of Chicago, has just been announced. Miss Cudahy is the eldest of four daughters. During the past year she has been president of the Junior League, a charitable organization composed of young Chicago society girls.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Do you know it's half-past ten, Nell? If you are to be in any shape tomorrow morning, we must get to bed."

"You go, dear. I must get some more packing done tonight. Didn't you say Mr. Scott was to come at ten?"

Nell looked in a dazed and dazed way. "About that time," she said, "I was sure that we would get to bed, but we will wait until after dinner."

"All right. That won't take long. You hurry up and I'll stuff these things in the basket in short order. Dick went whistling to his kitchen. After the suitcase was packed, Nell opened the door. "Nearly ready," she said cheerfully, "jumping something into the side of the basket with a great show of strength."

"Mersey! I hope the eggs are not in that basket, or anything else crumbly."

"Eggs? Why didn't you say there were eggs?" he answered reproachfully.

"You might pack the provisions. There's a lot of stuff; it's all out on the kitchen table, and it will help a lot if you'll pack it. I've got the linen and so on all in this suitcase."

Household Hint

SCHEDULE FOR A YOUNG MOTHER

6 to 7—Breakfast.
7 to 7:30—Dress and feed baby.
7:30 to 8—Brush up and dust.
8 to 9—Wash dishes and clear up the kitchen.
9 to 9:30—Playtime with baby.
9:30 to 10—Bath and put baby to sleep.
10 to 12:30—Iron, wash, clean, and make up and clean bathroom.
12:30 to 1—Lunch.
1 to 2:30—Play time, sewing, etc.
2:30 to 3:30—Baby's nap; mother's rest.
3:30 to 5—Miscellaneous.
5 to 5:30—Baby's supper.
5:30 to 6—Prepare dinner; put baby to bed.
6 to 7—Dinner.
7 to 7:30—Wash dishes and lay table for breakfast.

Every other day between 10 and 12:30 do baby's wash. On Tuesday iron, and from 9:30 to 5 do evening work. One day a week to clean silver when washing dishes. Another day scrub kitchen floor. Plan the biggest task for between 10 and 12:30.

Evening mother needs an hour of complete rest each day and that may be taken while baby sleeps from 2:30 to 3:30, leaving the remainder of the day for an outing or call. Of course, when the whole afternoon is spent away from home, it is best to plan the arrival before 2:30, thus baby can take his nap at usual hour.

From 3:30 to 5 a mother can do an endless number of things. Try to prepare all vegetables and fruits in the morning and put in ice chest until needed, then you will not be hurried at dinner time. And when you go to work after dinner, it is only a minute's work to lay table for breakfast and perhaps prepare the fruit.

When cereal is to be used, prepare it in a double boiler, and it only need be reheated in the morning. This gives you ample time in the morning to appear fresh and clean for work, and thus send husband and daddy off for a better day's work.

Don't be a slave to a schedule, but once tried you will wonder how you got along before.

FUTURE OF TURKEY AFTER THE COMBAT SHOWN BY BANKER

What That Undeveloped Nation Needs Is a Strong Economic Policy to Develop Her Great Industries.

Constantinople, Sept. 5.—A banker of considerable prominence in Constantinople has given the Associated Press correspondent some idea of what may be accomplished in Turkey by the application of the principles of modern economic policy. The banker stipulated that his name should not be used at this time, his position and knowledge of the country are such that his statements should be considered as of unusual importance.

Discussing the essentials that would make Turkey a strong and self-contained nation, the banker said that the first step needed today most was an economic policy that would leave something for coming generations. In other words, exploitation would have to cease.

"The undeveloped resources of the Ottoman empire are enormous," he continued. "Turkey, for instance, could meet the entire grain shortage of Europe, if its soil were adequately tilled and marketing facilities provided. Turkey could supply all of Europe with fruit, and she could supply the United States with a number of European countries from South and North America, Australia and New Zealand. The intelligent cultivation of coal and oil in the interior of the country would make Turkey a producer of the staple. The olive oil industry could be increased a thousand times. More wool could be exported. Ports of Anatolia and Syria are especially suited for the raising of plants of great medicinal value. Even coal of fair value could be shipped to the Mediterranean countries."

Before these things could be made possible, however, said the banker, the Ottoman government would have to realize that a stable economic policy was necessary. Some of the things that must be done at such a conclusion, but little had been done even by them, he asserted.

"But we must be patient. It is hardly two years now since the Turks themselves have taken to work."

Up to that time the Turks held the erroneous notion that work was not particularly ennobling, that work, after all, was for others—Kurdish, Greek and Armenian. With the Turks holding the reins of government, this view could lead but to one result—a total lack of sound economic policy.

The meeting of immediate needs as its objective. Exploitation of a most ruthless nature ensued. Under this system the splendid forests of Turkey were decimated, the peasants were taxed to death and given no opportunity to improve either himself or his land; honest investors were kept out of the country with the result that Turkey today has no industries, and is obliged even to ship its olive oil to Italy for refinement.

The absence of all economic understanding on the part of those in power under the present regime is appalling. These wishing to establish themselves in some industry or business in Turkey were usually asked to pay for the privilege in the form of a bribe to some official.

Under these conditions, "Already conditions have improved, but there is much room for betterment yet. But I am not one of those who maintain, maliciously, I think, that the Turk is constitutionally averse to progress. His spirit does not, as a rule, understand that what may benefit others, will benefit him. The Turk is suspicious of all strangers, he is also covetous enough to envy the foreigner who gives him enterprise lead to success. He does not understand that a similar qualification and exertion on his own part would produce the same result."

Such a condition could have but one result, the stagnation one finds in all parts of the Ottoman empire. Religion has nothing to do with that. I have many Turkish friends who enjoy material well-being along with their religion, and I am quite sure that the Anatolian peasant is capable of reaching a high standard of civilization, if he could but secure them."

Turkey needed a rapid extension of its railroad system, said the banker. It needed more roads, though paradoxical as it might seem, Turkey had never had so many good roads as had been built during the war. Then, the peasant would have to be trained and relieved from much of the petty taxes which are still subject to the whims of the government. The opportunity of developing under the impetus of unrestricted competition. Manufacture should be placed beyond the reach of governmental interference, with the control left entirely to ding—After preparing your roast by rubbing it with cheese cloth, then thoroughly rubbing in plenty of salt, sprinkle with pepper, put a piece of suet on top, sear the edges by cutting in with sharp knife. Little salt (this is done so as to prevent the roast from drawing together). A half hour before serving mix together 1½ pints milk, three eggs well beaten, seven tablespoons flour, half pint of salt, pour around roast, cut in squares and serve hot with roast. Allow about twenty minutes to each pound of meat, unless liked very rare, then from ten to fifteen minutes. Place often before pouring in the pudding.

Escaloped Macaroni—Break macaroni into boiling water with half teaspoon salt. Boil till tender, which will be in about half an hour. Drain off water and have ready a gravy made as follows: Place three cups milk in a stove boiler, take one tablespoon flour and half cup water and stir together; when milk boils, add this and let cook till a little thick. Grate cheese to cover bottom of a pudding dish which has been buttered, then put in a layer of macaroni, a little salt, pepper and butter. Moisten with the milk gravy, add more cheese and macaroni, the top being covered with bread crumbs. Place in hot oven to brown. Spaghetti, noodles, soda or oyster crackers may be prepared in the same way.

Mock Angel Cake—One cup sugar (scent), one generous cup flour, two heaping teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon cornstarch, pinch of salt. Stir together four times, then stir in one cup scalding milk; flavor. Add well beaten whites of two eggs last, folded in lightly. Bake in slow oven forty minutes. Use a tube cake tin, and do not grease it. Cool by turning upside down in tin.

White part: One cup granulated sugar and one-half cup butter (creamed together), one-half cup sweet milk, one and one-half cups flour, one-half cup cornstarch, two teaspoons baking powder, flavor vanilla, whites of three eggs well beaten and folded in last.

Bake in four layers (two or each) and put together alternately, with white icing.

Give Men Chance.

"No Turkish government has yet gone to the trouble of training men in economics, or giving the few Turks, so trained a chance of applying their knowledge," said one authority. "I doubt very much whether the first principle of economics is understood by a quarter of the men who serve in the departments of finance and economic matters in the Ottoman empire. It is all a question of ignorance—ignorance on the part of the men who manage affairs they do not understand, ignorance on the part of those who permit them to occupy such positions. Economic questions in Turkey are not settled from the viewpoint of the aggregate, but from that of individuals."

"It is all a matter of getting the thing started. I know that all Turkey is ready to start anew, and start under the guidance of a sound economic policy would reconcile the Greek and Armenian, who, even if they do not always adhere to such a policy themselves, know its value better than the Ottoman government. A governor has really never made the absence of a sound economic policy felt to them."

How will the abolition of the capitulations affect the getting of money for Turkey in the future? was asked of another banker.

"That depends upon what measures are taken by the Turkish government to protect the foreign investor," replied the banker. "I believe that Turkey would have no difficulty getting all the money she needs, providing it can establish beyond all doubt that the Ottoman laws and courts will ensure equity to all concerned. If that cannot be established, then Turkey will find no money, especially since this war has shown that needs will make first call upon the funds of investors. I can only say that people with money to invest have had much reason to have confidence in Ottoman law and jurisdiction in the past. But that might be overcome if the Turkish government could be persuaded to establish a sound superior court of commerce—a body whose duty it would be to adjudicate all disputes between foreign investors on the one hand and Turkish individuals and the government on the other."

Need Home Backing.

Industries established by foreigners under the capitulations had been no blessing to Turkey, said this man, citing in proof thereof the absence of which a paper mill operated by Austrians is said to have been guilty. The rights granted under the capitulation had in this case stifled foreign competition, and had given rise to a monopoly whose sole aim it was alleged, was to sell the poorest product at the highest price.

With the capitulations no longer operative, Turkey will have to convince the world, more so the foreign investor, that the abolition of these special privileges will in no wise endanger their interests. That, however, must be done, and can be done, if a foreigner in Turkey has come to grief since the capitulations were canceled. The Turkish government has handled the situation splendidly, and will continue to do so.

TRAVELER IN CHINA CARRIES HIS "CASH" ON A LONG STRING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Peking, Sept. 6.—An American, who recently arrived from the far interior of China, had with him the needed Peking string of copper coins with holes through the center, such as he had been using on his journey. The whole string, two feet in length, was deemed to be worth about ten or fifteen cents, for the coins were only the ordinary "cash" in current use in the province of Shensi, from which the traveler came; but upon examination a member of the American legation who knows the Chinese language, it was found that some bore the marks of emperors as far back as the year 284 A. D. On the string were "cash" representing every reign since the beginning of the Ching dynasty, many of the Ming dynasty, and even the dynasties that precede the latter.

Give Men Chance.

"No Turkish government has yet gone to the trouble of training men in economics, or giving the few Turks, so trained a chance of applying their knowledge," said one authority. "I doubt very much whether the first principle of economics is understood by a quarter of the men who serve in the departments of finance and economic matters in the Ottoman empire. It is all a question of ignorance—ignorance on the part of the men who manage affairs they do not understand, ignorance on the part of those who permit them to occupy such positions. Economic questions in Turkey are not settled from the viewpoint of the aggregate, but from that of individuals."

"It is all a matter of getting the thing started. I know that all Turkey is ready to start anew, and start under the guidance of a sound economic policy would reconcile the Greek and Armenian, who, even if they do not always adhere to such a policy themselves, know its value better than the Ottoman government. A governor has really never made the absence of a sound economic policy felt to them."

How will the abolition of the capitulations affect the getting of money for Turkey in the future? was asked of another banker.

"That depends upon what measures are taken by the Turkish government to protect the foreign investor," replied the banker. "I believe that Turkey would have no difficulty getting all the money she needs, providing it can establish beyond all doubt that the Ottoman laws and courts will ensure equity to all concerned. If that cannot be established, then Turkey will find no money, especially since this war has shown that needs will make first call upon the funds of investors. I can only say that people with money to invest have had much reason to have confidence in Ottoman law and jurisdiction in the past. But that might be overcome if the Turkish government could be persuaded to establish a sound superior court of commerce—a body whose duty it would be to adjudicate all disputes between foreign investors on the one hand and Turkish individuals and the government on the other."

Need Home Backing.

Industries established by foreigners under the capitulations had been no blessing to Turkey, said this man, citing in proof thereof the absence of which a paper mill operated by Austrians is said to have been guilty. The rights granted under the capitulation had in this case stifled foreign competition, and had given rise to a monopoly whose sole aim it was alleged, was to sell the poorest product at the highest price.

With the capitulations no longer operative, Turkey will have to convince the world, more so the foreign investor, that the abolition of these special privileges will in no wise endanger their interests. That, however, must be done, and can be done, if a foreigner in Turkey has come to grief since the capitulations were canceled. The Turkish government has handled the situation splendidly, and will continue to do so.

A Tale of Civil Strife

I fell on the platform, back of where the pulpit desk had stood, and a body lay across me. If I lost consciousness it was for no more than an instant, yet my whole body felt numb and useless. I could scarcely move my fingers to unclasp them from the gun barrel, and every breath I drew was in pain. Still I realized all that happened, distinguished voices, and the shuffling of feet on the puncheon floor. I heard Fox shouting orders, as the mad hubbub ceased.

"That's enough! That's enough, men! It's all over with. Here, sergeant, round up those prisoners; God knows there are few enough of the poor devils left. Guard those able to walk outside. Now, Herzog, carry the wounded over here. What? Why, of course, you idiot, we are not savages—those fellows fought like men, and are to be treated decently. No distinction, mind you. Let the dead lie where they are till daylight, but don't overlook a wounded man. Where's Cowan? Does anybody know?"

"Shot, sir; he's here in this pile somewhere."

"See if the fellow is alive. Who is his lieutenant?"

"I am, sir; my name's Kelly."

"Well get your damn crew of scoundrels out of here, what's left of them. Do you hear! This is soldier work, and I want you fellows outside."

"You used us all right when that was fightin' ter do—"

"That's enough, Kelly. I didn't use you—Moran did; and you can go to him with your complaints. I know how you treat prisoners, and would hang the whole of you, if I had my way. Now get out, and don't answer me—those are your orders. Lieutenant—Raymond."

"He was here a minute ago, sir," a voice answered from the vestibule, "but he went outside. I think he was touched a little in one arm."

"Fifty was wasn't in the mouth; has anyone seen a woman?"

No one answered.

"No! That's strange! Here Green, take a couple of men, and feel your way along the walls; Jasper, make a light of some kind—what you want me; Colonel Moran? Tell him I am the only officer present, and I can't leave. God! The place is a shambles!"

The searching party was to the right of me, against the black shadow of the wall. This was my chance, my one and only chance to slip away unnoticed. In five minutes more the searching party would find me there, and bear me along with the others. I wriggled out from under the weight of the body lying across my legs, and groped about in the dark until my fingers encountered the ring embedded in the floor. The light of the sputtering torch still left the pulpit platform in shadow; Fox was at the other end of the church, his sharp voice rasping out orders. I got to my knees, and lifted the trap barely far enough to squeeze through. There was a gleam of light below; sufficient to reveal the dark outline of the steps leading down. Some eye might distinguish the glimmer, yet I thrust my body through the narrow opening noiselessly, and lowered the cover to the floor level.

There was no cry, no sound indicating that the movement had been observed. I waited an instant, crouched breathlessly on the upper step, listening. My eyes surveyed those contracted surroundings curiously. The candle, a mere fragment, burned dimly in one corner, revealing what appeared to be the interior of a huge box, with a platform built half across it, its outer edge protected by a low rail. A small wheel ingeniously arranged to operate a lever, occupied one end of the platform, and directly across was an opening in the side wall next the floor, barely large enough for a man's body to squeeze into. Nothing else was visible; no evidence left of the two who had already passed that way.

I slipped down the steps, lowered my body silently to the damp floor. I entered the hole head first, dragging and pushing with hands and feet, eager to get quickly into the open. Almost before I realized the possibility, my head and shoulders emerged into the outer air and I hung suspended over a rock ledge, staring blindly down into the unknown depths of a ravine. The ledge itself was barely wide enough to afford foothold, yet I succeeded in creeping out upon it, and then in standing upright. The shoulder of the hill was sufficiently steep and high to shut out all view of the log walls of the church, while below was a black void, out from which arose the faint splashing of distant water. But the church itself must have been lit up by this time, for a reddish glow of light tipped the bank above, and bridged the dark ravine. The rock ledge extended to the right, a fairly smooth path, and I followed it cautiously, finding no other available passage. It led gradually downward, until it seemed to merge into a beaten track, running directly south through a tangle of underbrush not far above the stream. The way was intensely black, yet not difficult to follow by the sense of touch, while the incessant roar of the nearby water blotted out all sound from above. Once I heard the crack of guns, but they sounded at a distance, and looking up, I could perceive the red reflection on the trees lining the bank far above. But for these I was plunged in a black solitude, through which I must grope my way, each step liable to plunge me into uncertain peril. A hundred yards, two hundred, and the trail averted more to the right, and began to mount upward, zig-zagging among the trees. Slowly, cautiously, my head arose above the crest, and the moon, just peering out from behind the edge of a cloud, gave me glimpses along the level plateau.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

With Nature's Weapons.

To the right of where I lay was the outline of the church, the windows alight, several blazing torches, bobbing about within, revealing passing figures, although the distance was too great to permit any sound of voices reaching my ears. The rear door, however, stood wide open, and a considerable body of men were grouped there. Straight across from me, a squad of horsemen were moving northward, and a single rider was spurring rapidly between them and the church. The grove of trees where I was, to meet Nichols and Noreen was to the left. It was dark and silent, a shapeless shadow, and the forest growth of the ravine extended far enough over the crest to hide my approach. Satisfied that no searching parties were near by, I advanced swiftly along the edge of this fringe of trees, yet taking every precaution. 'Twas well I did, for suddenly the horseman averted, and rode straight toward me, through the moonlight. I sank down into the brush, revolver in hand, and waited. Once he stopped, and called out something; then came on along the edge of the wood, walking his horse slowly. The rider was not a soldier, but beyond that fact, evidenced by lack of uniform, I could make no guess as to his identity, although I believed him one of Cowan's guerrillas. A gun, poised and ready, forked out beside his horse's neck, and he leaned forward in the saddle, peering into the shadows. A few feet beyond me, he suddenly reined in his horse, and called again:

"That you, Lieutenant?"

A single figure seemed to emerge from among the trees—a mere shadow, formless and silent.

"Yes; who are you?"

"Kelly—Dean told me you were here; the damn fellow has got away, and the girl with him."

"How do you know?"

"We've looked over every dead body, the wounded and prisoners, and searched every inch of the church—they're not there, sir."

"By God! Where could they have gone? They were there; he was anywhere, for I heard his voice. Did you talk with any of those living?"

"There ain't many ter talk ter. The Reb lieutenant is a goin' ter pull thro', I reckon, but he's hurt too bad ter talk. Anyhow Fox wouldn't give me no chance fer ter git nigh him. I asked a soldier, a young feller, an' he sed Wyatt an' the girl was both in thar; he sed 'em together just afore we charged. But I'll be damned if they're thar now."

Raymond muttered something, a smothered oath no doubt, and then burst forth:

"Well, good God, man! They are both flesh and blood. If neither are there then they must have found a way of escape. We had every side of the church guarded so a mouse couldn't get through in this moonlight—I saw to that myself."

"There were no guards on the east."

"Because there was no room to post any. The church walls are on the edge of the ravine; Cowan said there were none needed there."

"Wall," insisted the other, half angrily. "I didn't think so neither, nor'morn' Anse did; but I reckon that's whar we made a mistake. Then two's skeddaddled, an' thar warn't no chance insolence, but I wished to gain possession of the horse. Such an opportunity as this was the gift of God, and I was only too eager to accept it. The wide plain in front of us was deserted, the cavalry troop having disappeared. The glare of torches had disappeared from within the church, which was now a mere shapeless shadow in the moonlight. My vision did not extend to the road in front, but there were sounds indicating that the Federal forces were either going into camp, or preparing to resume their march. Satisfied that my own way was clear, I crawled out to the edge of the line of brush, and arose silently to my feet. To reach Raymond I would have to pass where the horse was tied, and to approach on hands and knees would be liable to frighten the animal. Trusting that the lieutenant's whole attention would be devoted to the trail, and that he would anticipate no approach from behind, I walked straight forward, and laid hand on the horse's head. He smelt of me curiously, but made no move, and, looking across his back, I could dimly perceive the man a few paces beyond. He stood erect, his back towards me, perfectly motionless, his entire consciousness concentrated on his guard. I stole forward step by step, noiselessly. I was actually within reach of him before some sense told him of my near presence, and he wheeled about only to find a leveled revolver staring him in the eyes.

"We meet again," I said coldly. "and it seems to be my luck to hold the cards."

"You! Good God! I thought—"

"I know what you thought, for I was within ten feet of you when you talked to Kelly. Put up your hands, Raymond! Yes, of course, but don't attempt any play—I only need an excuse to hurt you."

He glared at me savagely, yet his hands went up, although I could see him glance backward over one shoulder into the darkness of the ravine.

"You might make the jump," I said, drawing a revolver from his belt, "but to my best judgment there is a hundred foot sheer drop right here, and it would damage you some to take it. See, and I tossed the weapon over the edge, and we heard the sound as it struck on the rocks below. "I guess you'll not try that trick. And so you want me so badly you offer a reward, dead or alive? Isn't it rather my wife you want?"

"I don't believe she is your wife."

"Not after she gave you her word! That is hardly complimentary to the lady, Lieutenant. However I haven't any reason to be jealous of you—Noreen knows you too well by this time; you proved yourself a treacherous cur in Lewisburg. Now turn around!"

Dinner Stories

An exhorter in a negro camp meeting in Alabama had just made a great speech. When he got through he went down among the congregation and asked each one to join the army of the Lord.

One of the congregation, when this question was put to him, replied:

"I sed done 'ined."

"Whard yo' jine?" asked the exhorter.

"In de Baptist church."

"Why, chile," said the exhorter, "yo' ain't in de army; yo's in de navy."

A clerk and a lawyer were on their way downtown on the trolley the other morning, when the lawyer looked up from his paper and said:

"Why, that's a pretty girl over there in the corner."

The clerk looked up from his paper in his turn. Then he smiled.

"I know her," he said. "I know her well."

"Holy smoke, man," said the law-

"We Meet Again," I Said Coldly.

for 'em anywhere else. That's plain enough, ain't it? I don't know nuthin' 'bout what's thar, fur I never ain't been 'long that edge, but if them two ever got out inter that thar ravine they're thar yet, fer thar's no way leading out 'cept along thar trail yonder."

"What trail? Where?"

"Back thar, 'bout a hundred feet, I reckon—an ol' hog trail that leads down ter the creek. Thar couldn't nobody cum up it without yer seein' 'em from here."

"And so you think they're down there yet?"

"Sure; 'less they got wings they couldn't a come up no other way."

The lieutenant strode forward, and grasped the rein of the horse. I could see him clearly now, the moonlight on his upturned face.

"Then we've got them, all right," he asserted, a new confidence in his voice. "You know the way down, don't you, Kelly?"

"Hell, yes; I hid out thar fer six weeks out. They call it the Devil's glen, an' I reckon tain't a bad name neither."

"All right then; I've got three men here who'll go with you. That will be enough. I'll stay up here, so if the fellow slips by I'll nab him. Jones—all of you come here. Come, Kelly, there's a hundred dollars in this for you."

"By God! It's worth it, fer somebody's liable ter get shot." He rolled out of the saddle, but with evident reluctance. "I reckon I'll let one o' them sojers go ahead. Yer must want that Reb powerful bad, lieutenant?"

"I do," grimly; "dead or alive."

Three other figures joined them; they were on foot, but I could see the guns in their hands, and the gleam of buttons in the moonlight. Raymond spoke swiftly, pointing with one hand, but his voice was lowered so the words did not reach me. No doubt he was briefly explaining the plan, and giving orders. Kelly added a gruff sentence, and then the whole five tramped past me, the lieutenant leading the horse, and Kelly coming so close to where I lay I could have touched him with an extended hand. Scarcely venturing to breathe I watched their passage along the edge of the bluff, until they halted at the point where I had come up the trail. They remained grouped there for a moment, talking earnestly; then the shadow formed disintegrated, and Raymond and the horse alone remained distinguishable. I knew the others had disappeared in the blackness of the ravine, and that they were destined to search its depths in vain, for what little trail I might have left in my crawl upward could never be deciphered in that darkness. I waited motionless for what I believed to be ten minutes, anxious that the fellows get far enough down to be safely beyond earshot. At first I could hear them slipping and stumbling along the steep, stony path, but these sounds grew fainter and finally ceased. The lieutenant led the horse back a few yards, and fastened his rein securely to the limb of a tree; then took his own position within the brush shadow, where he could watch the head of the trail. From where I crouched I could no longer see the fellow.

I had no thought of going on and leaving him there on guard. Not only did I feel an overwhelming desire to punish the man for his treachery, and yer, "you know her why, don't you go over and sit with her?" "I'll attend one of these here amatures purr-formances an' I should uv stuck to it!"

"To what do you attribute your remarkable habit?"

"Well," replied the very old gentleman, "I reckon I got a good start on most people by bein' born before germs was discovered, thereby havin' less to worry about."—Washington Star.

Servant Problem Solved.

Just to show how lucky are those parts of France which the Germans have overrun with fire and sword, an ingenious German press agent has invented the following story, the scene of which is laid in what is left of a once smiling village in the north of France. A worthy dame whose house has survived the gunnery practice of the Kaiser's artillerymen—possibly because of its remoteness from the bank of a village church, now a heap of ruins—is talking to another of her species, presumably equally fortunate in having a roof over her graying head.

"You've no notion," says the first dame, "how clean and in what perfect order everything is in our house. I never in all my born days saw the place so spic and span."

The second dame nods to show her natural and proper interest in this bit of housewifely gossip.

"I'm so glad, my dear," says she, "that at last you've got a really good servant."

"Servant!" exclaims the first dame with Gallic vivacity. "Who said servant? It's the dear German soldiers that's billeted in the house. They done the cleaning!"—New York Evening Post.

Guncotton as Bait.

A part of the equipment of some cavalrymen just returned to France from a few days' furlough in England is a fishing-rod and several varieties of baits. But there are others who prefer to fish for the pot in more sudden and ruthless manner. Their method is very different. They operate in those parts of the canals where roach and dace are thought—not always with reason—to be numerous. The final attack, as in all modern aggressive operations, is opened by the expenditure of explosives. But in this case the expenditure is not great. A small wad of guncotton neatly exploded under water is enough to account for all the fish within a considerable radius; and a few moments after the discharge the undersides of the roach and dace appear on the surface. The idea was suggested by the accidental havoc wrought among the fish by a certain Jack Johnson.

The Lion of St. Mark's.

The famous winged Lion of St. Mark, symbol of the old Venetian republic, which was endangered by the Austrian air attack on the city of the lagoons, is one of the most composite monuments in existence. It is of bronze with eyes of white agates—though Venetians tell you they are diamonds—and it is believed to have ornamented some ancient Assyrian palace before it came to Venice and was raised on the top of a column in the Square of St. Mark.

The whole figure, as it now stands, belongs to many epochs, renovated again and again, and the only portion of the original animal remaining is the head—except the crown and part of the body. When last renovated in 1881 the whole lion was found to be a mass of disconnected fragments bound together with iron bands.

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 6, 1875.—Dr. L. E. Hackley and wife left this morning for New York, where they will spend two or three weeks visiting relatives.

Mr. David Walsh of the town of Harmony, near Milton, sends us a specimen of corn, of which he has twenty-two acres. It is comparatively hard, out of the way of frosts entirely, and promises a good yield.

The roof of the institute for the blind has been finished, as has all the masonry work connected with the main building. The masons begin the boiler house today.

Cincinnati, Sept. 6.—Saturday evening six children got into a skiff in Mill river, at Fuller's mills, on the Marietta railroad, for a ride across the river. When about midway the boat, which had been leaking badly, sank. One little girl was drowned. Three others were rescued with great difficulty by a boy named Reader. When brought ashore the other two were unconscious, but were subsequently resuscitated.

Yesterday the thermometer indicated 80 degrees above zero at one o'clock p. m.

CONTINUATION SCHOOL LAWS MOST DRASTIC

ALL CHILDREN BETWEEN 14 AND 18 MUST TAKE 4 HOURS A WEEK AT SPECIAL SCHOOL.

PARENTS ARE LIABLE

Special Act Forces Children Between 14 and 17 to Take Same Work. Employer Can Also Be Held.

Two new measures that apply to the state continuation schools and to the children of the state between the ages of fourteen and seventeen have been passed by the legislature of the session that just closed. Both the measures are very rigid, and parents and employers are asked to take particular notice of the laws as published below.

The laws apply to the industrial, continuation, commercial or evening schools of the state, and are published herewith in connection with the schools of that nature that exist in this city. Under the old laws that still exist, the parents and employers were held liable to fines today, whether it will make no difference whether a person secures a permit or not this year, all children under the ages of sixteen must attend school, whether it be a high, parochial, public or continuation school. The law that states this fact is found in the statutes, chapter number 20. This measure was approved on June 18th, this year, and reads as follows:

An Act to create section 430a-1 of the statutes, relating to the attendance of children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen at industrial, continuation, commercial or evening schools.

Be it enacted by the people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There is added to the statutes a new section to read: Section 430a-1. Any person between the ages of fourteen and sixteen living within two miles of the school of any town, or within the corporate limits of any city or village and not physically incapacitated, who is not required by section 430a to attend some public, private or parochial school, and who is not attending a free high school or equivalent of a high school, must either attend some public, private or parochial school, or attend for at least five hours a week for six months, or four hours a week for eight months, an industrial, continuation, commercial or evening school, or schools, are maintained according to the provisions of sections 430a-2 to 430a-9, inclusive, in the town, village or city in which his parents or guardians reside. This section shall apply only to persons between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, living in towns, villages and cities maintaining schools as provided in sections 430a-2 to 430a-9 inclusive, of the statutes.

The other measure requires that all persons between the ages of sixteen and eighteen years, who are employed, must take four hours of work each week for eight months at one of the schools named in the above act. Persons not working are not forced to take such school work. Commercial and other interesting subjects will be outlined later.

CALL MEETING OF STOCKMEN INTERESTED IN SENDING AN EXHIBIT TO SAN FRANCISCO

BADGER HORSEMEN MAKING PROGRESS

Large Percentage of Grade and Scrub Stallions Have Been Retired Within Last Few Years.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 6.—Despite a somewhat depressed condition of the horse breeding industry during the past year, substantial progress is being made by Wisconsin horsemen. The forthcoming annual report of the department of horsebreeding, University of Wisconsin, compiled by Dr. A. S. Alexander, will show among other things that in very many of the counties undesirable horses are being retired at a gratifying rate.

In 1907 the percentage of grade and scrub stallions was 65. Now it is 41.8 compared with 45 in 1914. The pure bred stallions of the state now number 1,771; the grades 313, and scrubs 345. Grades numbered 1,019 and scrubs 404 in 1914.

Since 1907, pure bred stallions have increased 11, while grades have increased and remained the same in two counties. During the same time grade and scrub stallions have decreased in 56, increased in 11, and remained the same in four counties. Notable increases of pure bred stallions since 1907 have been: 26 head in Barrow county, 26 in Brown, 24 in Walworth and Monroe each, 22 in Chippewa, and 21 in St. Croix. The most notable decreases in grade and scrub stallions have been 69 head in Grant county, 56 in Dane, 45 in Monroe, 30 each in Brown and Manitowish, 28 in Fond du Lac and 25 in Lafayette and Trempealeau.

Of the draft breeds, the Percherons outnumbered all others, there being 1,052 of this type, 168 Belgians, 74 Clydesdales, 64 French drafts, 46 Shires and one Suffolk.

Hereford American horsemen have depended to a large extent upon the breeders of foreign countries for the improvement of their studs. It is expected that in the future the home bred animal will be in greater demand. Wisconsin, because of its excellent climatic conditions, can be depended upon to produce horses which will equal those raised anywhere.

CLINTON

Clinton, Sept. 4.—B. Seaman and son, Fred, were her Wednesday, Thursday calling on their old friends and neighbors, who tried to persuade them to return to Clinton to make their home.

Come to Clinton Labor day. Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Olds and Miss Evelyn came down from Madison on Thursday morning to visit relatives and friends.

Clyde Cleveland, who was injured by being hit by an auto, while playing in the street in front of his home, is improving and will be out and around in about two weeks.

The contractors are pushing the work very rapidly on the road work on Milwaukee street and the work is already showing what a fine looking street it will be when completed.

Clinton is today holding a special election on two important matters, one the question of raising $1,000 for the building of a new school, and the other a question of entering a contract for lighting the streets with electricity. It is believed the former question will carry and the latter lose.

Mrs. Phila. Harrell and daughter, Miss May, of Beloit, were here Thursday visiting old friends and neighbors.

Charles Elliott of Beloit was here Tuesday on business.

Miss Marjorie Booth of Chicago is visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Larson.

Kenneth Kirkham of Chicago is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Thomas.

Samuel Meredith and wife of Milwaukee are visiting at the home of Mrs. Meredith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Drake.

Rev. W. P. Ireland and son, Rutherford, were in Beloit yesterday on business.

The Congregational Sunday school here had a very successful day, having a beautiful country home last night was a great success, both socially and financially.

Mrs. Mary Abell is improving the comfort and appearance of her home on East street by the addition of a fine new veranda.

A. J. Wilkins is painting his home, corner Milwaukee avenue and Main street.

Mrs. H. Olmstead is seriously sick and her family and friends are very much worried over her.

Mrs. Perry Chamberlain is very low and her friends are anxious for her recovery.

L. L. Simmons and family are moving to A. Woodard home, corner Milwaukee avenue and Durand st.

Perry Woodard and wife are now occupying the McAfee house and Mrs. Will Schultz have moved to Woodard, A. E. Jacobson and wife have moved from the McAfee house to Miss Alita Polz house on Church street, just vacated by G. W. Puffer and family.

Almost everything wanted are found advertised in Gazette want ads. Read them and see.

HELPING TO MAKE U. S. FOREMOST IN DYE PRODUCTION

Dr. Thomas H. Norton.

Dr. Thomas H. Norton, the federal dye expert and head of the dyestuff bureau established by the department of commerce, has just gone to New York to begin accelerating the development of the dyestuffs industry of the United States.

Dr. Norton says the United States is now on the eve of a great awakening in the making of dyes and that it is his opinion that when the war in Europe is over this country will be in a position to supply all of Europe with just as good dyes as Germany has been sending here.

AUCTIONS

Now that harvest is nearly or entirely over auction sales will take their places on the farmer's calendar.

Those planning for an auction this fall will do well to get started early and have the advantage of a clearer field and less opposition.

The Janesville Gazette has a little booklet entitled, "Auctions and how to prepare for them" which will be sent upon request.

The auction directory will be resumed again. This was a great success last season as it acted as a clearing house for auctioneers and prevented auctions being held near each other on the same date. Send in your dates and address.

The value of the Janesville Gazette as an advertising medium was demonstrated again and again. Little or no bills being required where the sale was advertised in the paper which goes into majority of homes in Rock and surrounding counties.

The rates are $4 for one insertion, $6 for two, $9 for three, etc. for a ten inch advertisement reproducing the whole list.

FOR RENT—House with all modern improvements. Inquire Fred H. Hartz, 202 Palm St. 11-9-3-31.

WAY TO PRINT PHOTOGRAPHS

Calhoun System Enables One to Use Steady Electric Light With Automatic Time Device.

In printing photographs by natural light, a photographer spends much of his time in watching the effect of the light which is not always uniform. The Calhoun photo printer enables the photographer to use steady electric light and to set an automatic timing device which cuts off this light at the proper time, says the Popular Electricity. The light is provided by a movable cluster of incandescent lamps within a cabinet. It is claimed that with good weather and sunlight a photographer can

The success of Harold Bell Wright's novel, "The Shepherd of the Hills," made into a play by its author in collaboration with Elsbey W. Reynolds.

There is much "atmosphere" of the hills pervading the play. And in making the production, Messrs. Gaskill and MacVitty, the producers, it is said, have supplied some beautiful and realistic stage pictures. "The Shepherd of the Hills" will be seen at Myers Theatre tomorrow.

AT MYER'S THEATRE.

has proven just as big on the stage last year as in book form, it does in the book form.

The story of the play is based on a somewhat dramatic plot of mystery. An unknown comes into the Ozark mountains and because of his clerical bearing and readiness to officiate for the regular pastor of the mountaineers, a portion of his disguise is penetrated. The mountaineers, who are so much to themselves are willing to let the man live the life of a pariah. He makes friends with one family and volunteers for the place of shepherd. In this guise he attempts to expiate the wrong-doing of his son, who several years previously had advised musical success. "The Lady in Red," which comes to the Myers Theatre Saturday, September 11, matinee and night, and manager Myers promises that none will be disappointed, and here is his argument. "I have in my possession an original program of 'The Lady in Red' as it appeared for sixteen weeks at the Geo. M. Colman Grand Opera-House, (Chicago), and have Mr. Herndon's personal assurance that the cast, chorus and production to be seen here will be absolutely the same. Several of my friends have seen it in the Windy City and all claim it to be the classiest musical come into the mountains and wronged one of the young women. Her father has vowed deadly vengeance on the betrayer of his daughter, but he has disappeared, leaving no traces of his whereabouts. It is generally supposed that he is dead. The good shepherd wins the love and respect of the mountaineers, though at one time his life is endangered by a lawless band of mountaineers who suspect he is a revenue officer.

There are many dramatic episodes in the play, but its strength lies in the unfolding and development of its characters. The shepherd is a most impressive figure, mentally and physically. The young woman who is the heroine of the story is untrammeled by the conventions of the town, and had good red blood in her veins. With the aid of the shepherd she polishes her mind so that she becomes a young woman of culture and refinement. Then there is the young mountaineer, whose love is honest and sincere and who down the clambon bully and strong man of the mountains in a marvelous contest of strength and endurance. Then there is a will-o-the-wisp across the mountains and is the means of finally bringing happiness to the shepherd and restoring the good name of the mountaineer's family.

play of the season. How could it be otherwise, when we consider that it is interpreted by such splendid stars as Valli Valli, Glenn Hall, Edward Martindale, Gertrude Vanciger, Will Phillips, Josie Intropoli, George Moore, Henry Vincent, Ann Herndon, Phyllis Maude and Lucie Gardiner. While we have had a great many good shows out of Chicago, it is seldom that we get a musical production in its entirety and original form. In order to procure this attraction, I was compelled to make a big guarantee, but I did not hesitate, as I feel that I owe it to my many friends and patrons and intend starting the season with the best the land affords, and at the same time satisfy my personal vanity by proving that plays of merit will always attract capacity houses.

"The Lady in Red" was very much in vogue in Berlin before it was introduced by Anna Caldwell, who wrote "The Girl"—the twenty-one musical numbers are by Robert Winterberg, and the staging was done by Robert Milton and Frank Smithson. Another feature will be the special augmented orchestra.

Injuries From Defects in Premises. An owner or occupier of real property is under no obligation to make it safe, or to keep it in any particular condition for the benefit of trespassers, intruders, volunteers, or people who have only a bare license or permission from him to come upon it. Under this rule an owner or occupant is not liable in damages to a person of one of these classes who comes upon his property and is injured by falling into an uncovered cistern, or to one who in going to a fire out through the yard and fell into an excavation, or to one injured by the breaking down of a wooden stairway, or to one whose leg was caught in an opening that had been negligently left in the premises and was crushed by a revolving wheel. The only duty to which a proprietor is held is to refrain from wantonly or recklessly injuring the person after discovering his trespass or peril.

But the owner or occupier who, expressly or impliedly invites the public or particular members of it, to come upon his premises, assumes the duty toward them of exercising reasonable care to the end that such premises shall not contain dangerous obstructions, pitfalls, and the like, which may result in their injury; and is liable in damages in case any such persons are injured without their own fault or negligence. He is liable to all persons whom he expressly invites as guests. He is also liable to those implicitly invited, as customers or employees of customers, letter carriers, meter readers, delivery men, and the like.

YANKEE MISSIONERS SAVED SERBIA FROM EPIDEMIC OF TYPHUS

Work of the Americans in Saving Country from Plague Called Greatest Humanitarian Act of Age.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Nish, Serbia, Aug. 25.—(By mail.)—From 100,000 cases of typhus to 600 and from a maximum mortality of 70 per cent. to one of 20—all within the space of three months is the record of the American Red Cross and Rockefeller Institute Sanitary mission sent here to save the Serbian nation from the epidemic that was threatening its actual existence.

By Sept. 1, Serbia will be entirely free of the plague. The full story of the most remarkable humanitarian task ever undertaken by the United States is today told for the first time in an interview granted by Dr. Richard P. Strong, professor of tropical diseases at Harvard University, and head of the American mission. The interview took place in the little third class railway car, which fitted out with beds in one part and a shower bath in the other, and with a flat car attached behind, carrying his automobile and another car in front for the members of his immediate staff, has been practically the only home Dr. Strong has known in Serbia. Almost every night of the three months campaign has been spent by him aboard the car, hurrying from one end of Serbia to the other in the fight against the deadly plague.

"The typhus epidemic in Serbia," stated Dr. Strong, "began last January in the vicinity of Vallievo, following the Austrian invasion of the month before, and spread with such rapidity that it became the greatest epidemic of that disease recorded in modern medical annals. The epidemic reached its height in the middle of April just as the American mission arrived. New cases then numbered 8,500 daily, but it must be remembered that these were the figures only of the victims who came to the military hospitals. Serbia had not been able even to keep statistics of the victims among the civil population and so the above figures give, as a matter of fact, no accurate idea of the extent of the epidemic.

Thousands Killed.

"In fact, few figures of any kind are to be had, but presumably the deaths from the disease have been about 100,000 and the number of victims down with the disease at the time we took charge was very likely of equal magnitude.

"As an epidemic of typhus never before had occurred in the history of modern medicine, I freely confess that it was with no little concern we first arrived here. A quick survey of the situation convinced us, however, that with effective organization the plague could be wiped out in four months. I am still confident that when the four pitched camp, the last of the 600 cases still remaining will have disappeared.

"Following the preliminary organization of a national sanitary board, something Serbia had not, the division of the country into sanitary districts, we at once went after the practical end of the work—namely, the chasing down and extermination of the louse which was the bite alone the disease is transmitted. "As the quickest means of reaching the greatest number of the stricken population in the shortest possible time, we had two refrigerator cars placed at our disposal. In one of these was installed an apparatus for the disinfecting of clothing by heavy steam pressure and its immediate drying afterwards. In the second car was fitted the necessary appliances for a disinfecting bath of the victims. With the arrival of the car at each town, a tent was pitched on the side of the railroad in which the population could undress. They then entered the first car where they left their clothing for disinfection and passed immediately to the second car for the disinfection of their bodies. Only ten minutes were required for the joint operation at the end of which time each person was given back his clothing, dried and ready to put on, with the absolute assurance that not a single louse or nit remained.

"Our average speed was 500 to 600 cases a day and in the three and a half months we have had the cars in operation we figure that a total of not less than 600,000 persons have been reached in this manner.

Communication Limited.

"Unfortunately, railway communication in Serbia is very limited and the reaching of the population in the interior presented a different problem. Individual sanitary missions were therefore sent to each important town, traveling in military automobiles or carriages, and frequently having their supplies carried in ox carts. Disinfecting and bathing plants were then established in each big center of population and the same process of extermination carried on. Where the Serbian government had funds at its disposal, the missions were given the expense, but where it did not, we paid for them ourselves. A total of 53 plants were thus installed by us and they constitute a permanent part of Serbia's equipment for dealing with a similar situation should it ever come again.

"The next most important phase of the work was our sanitary assault of the military hospitals. These were the start had been the most prolific centers for the spreading of the disease. They were at all times congested with the limit with wounded or sick soldiers, whose infection quickly spread the disease to almost every inmate.

"In attacking the hospitals we took with us portable bathing plants and our disposition the Austrian practice to give the sick and wounded their disinfecting baths. While they were doing this we put their clothing and bedding through the steam process and then wound up by disinfecting the entire building with sulphur and often even whitewashing the walls. Of the 112 military hospitals in Serbia, 100 passed through this sanitary regeneration at our hands.

Quarantine Worked.

"Still another most important phase of the work was the visiting of every house almost in the entire kingdom and separating the diseased from the well. The quarantining of the infected persons was something which the local authorities had not been able to undertake, but under our direction it was quickly and thoroughly carried out.

"While we were hard at work on this extermination of typhus, we also had our eyes constantly on the look-out for cholera and typhoid. None of the former was found, but the latter was abundant. Against this, against the former, too, we therefore prepared in our own laboratories which we had established in the old Turkish town of Uskub, of typhoid and paratyphoid. This was prepared in such a manner that two injections were sufficient and thus it was possible to administer it to both the army and the civil population with a minimum of labor. For this task of vaccination we had our own vaccinating car which covered all the territory that could be reached by rail, and also furnished the serum to the French surgeons here who undertook its administration in the army.

"In connection with this laboratory work, we started from the very first on a search for the typhus germ, but up to the present moment complete success has not crowned our efforts. The germ is being actively pushed by Dr. Zinsner of Columbia and Dr. Sollard of Harvard.

"One of the most happy features of the whole work was the manner in which we ourselves, after the terrible experiences of the Serbian and American Red Cross units, kept free from the disease. No one of the fifty-four men comprising our mission fell a victim. But naturally we had at our disposal all of the latest possible preventatives. Every doctor assigned to hard duty among the victims wore a vermin proof suit, rubber gloves and adhesive bands above the wrists and ankles. We have not been able to demonstrate that the disease is contagious and in fact there seems no reason to believe that it is transmitted otherwise than by the bite of infected vermin.

"In Montenegro we were most fortunate in being able to check the epidemic before it could become general. Dr. Grinnell of Harvard, who was assigned to that territory, arrived when the disease had only got into the towns. These were quickly quarantined and the plague stamped out at once.

"By the middle of August, I think I will be able to guarantee that typhus will not be a thing of the past in Serbia. Not only that, but we would be greatly disappointed if it ever came again. But still even in this later case, Serbia now has at its disposal all of the facilities necessary for speedily combating any outbreak. "Naturally, every man who ever shirked or even objected to any task assigned him, no matter how disagreeable or even how dangerous it might be.

"The other bright spot which stands out most vividly was the unflinching kindness of Sir Thomas Lipton to the members of the mission. Not only did he cheer us up in our worst moments when cheer was most needed, but his unending efforts to furnish the members of the mission with little odds and ends for their material comfort gave evidence of a kindly consideration of others, such as I have never before met. "As a result of our four months work here, I think we can safely say that Serbia is a regenerated nation from a sanitary point of view and the effects of this I feel certain will be reflected in her national life and development for years to come."

She was gazing at him with both her eyes, and he was gazing at her with both of his.

Suddenly she clapped her hand over her left eye and gazed at him only with her right.

"Oh, hubbings!" she cried, "I dot a cinder in my eye!"

At the same moment he clapped a hand over his right eye so that he was gazing at her only with his left, and exclaimed, "Oh, twetie, I dot a cinder in my eye!"

Here was a pretty pass! For how could they remove the mote from each other's eye when each was suffering so?

"Oh, boykins," she shouted happily, "maybe we each dot part of the same 'tittle cinder'."

"Oh, cutiebins," he rejoiced, "Let's leave them in!"

Which they did, while the honeymoon express skimmed through the purple fields of Nebalunka.

THE GOLDEN EAGLE LEVY'S

Keeping Young and Building for the Future

This is almost a slogan for this great store. The whole organization is keenly alive to anticipate the growing demands of the shopping public with a corps of fashion experts constantly reaching out for newer merchandise. Changes within are being made even before necessary conditions arise.

THE NEW FALL SUITS $15 and Higher

In the new Autumn Fashions which we have the gracious privilege of presenting in all their loveliness, the spirit of youth and beauty has expressed its own true self as it expresses it each season—more brilliant than ever before.

Warner's Are Here!

We have been waiting with expectation to announce the arrival of the Warner styles for this season, and at last they are here.

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

Lots of Them

For tall figures, short figures, broad figures, slim figures, for mother and daughter, for debutante and grandmother, each style particularly adapted to a certain figure's needs, but all designed and shaped to best set off the fashions of present dress.

These styles are now ready for your inspection. May we suggest an early call to select your corset before your gowns and suits are fitted? This season, more particularly than ever, is the success of the gown dependent on the corset, and Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets are our recommendation.

Every Pair Guaranteed
